Determinism insists that all of society is a result of effects by one center. We all have unique personal experiences that shape our values. This was a type of shorthand for understanding the differences between hot and cool media, characterized by their emphasis on the eye or the ear. Archived from the original on February 14, It is NOT about being in control. Varying opinions exist on the question of what role the bombings played in Japan's surrender: some regard the bombings as the deciding factor, [] others see the bombs as a minor factor, and yet others assess their importance as unknowable.
